There have been three assassinations, three conspiracies, three frameups, three coverups and three failures by government agencies either to discover the truth or tell the truth, Richard P. Sprague, president of Personal Data Services Corp. of New York, told members of the Association for Computing Machinery Saturday.

Sprague, main speaker for the final day of ACM's Southeastern Regional Conference at the Read House, went on to tell the group that James Earl Ray did not shoot Martin Luther King, the fatal bullets that killed Sen. Robert Kennedy did not come from Sirhan Sirhan's gun but were fired by a guard standing in back of the senator, and that there were four persons shooting at President Kennedy in Dallas.

"There are probably one or three groups or a combination of three groups of assassins and conspirators still wandering around free with de factor backing by the FBI, Justice Department, CIA, and the police departments of Dallas, Memphis and Los Angeles," Sprague said.
